Society Leaves Town for Brilliant Weddings.

By MILDRED MARSHALL KOONCE.

HE week, so filled with interesting events away from town, maintained its customary quiet at the Capital, though Washington society was largely represented in the social activities of other cities and summer colonies, particularly at the notable weddings of the week. The marriage of Miss Genevieve Clark to Mr. James M. Thomson, at Bowling Green, was the event of almost national interest which attracted social and political notables from all sections of the United States, as well as the citizens of Missouri en masse. Never has there been a wedding in the State like that of the Speaker's daughter, nor indeed in any State, where there was such lavish hospitality and widespread interest. Aside from its perfect sylvan setting and its social importance, it bore many unique features as delightful as they were original. It seemed to be Missouri's wedding, not merely limited to the Clark family, and the hearty response of all Missouri, from the highest to the lowest, evidenced the interest of the State in the young bride, who is affectionately called "The Little Princess," as well as the popularity of the Speaker.

The Munn-Wanamaker wedding, the von Stade-Steele nuptials, Miss Reyburn's marriage to Capt. Harrington, and the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Binney and Mr. Barnes Newberry, son of the former Secretary of the Navy in the Roosevelt administration, were among the other interesting out-of-
